

Finestrat is a delightful seaside town, while combining mountain rocky natural quiet and green of the towering peaks of Puig Campana with cosmopolitan attractions of Cala, familiar and peaceful destination of thousands of citizens

Spanish and European.

High on a hill just very open 238 meters above the sea, its steep, narrow streets, traditional facade, with floors of white paint wide doors, carved wood, dissolve the village of Finestrat on an earthly terrain soft, to compose a swinging urban landscape completely adapted to a territory old rough and rugged.

Because it is still a corner Finestrat human on the planet where you can stroll leisurely walk through its streets and squares without being assaulted by the noise and

Traffic: breathing oxygen from their nearby pine trees and the fragrance of old orchards almond, olive and carob trees at dawn recognize the smell of freshly baked bread without watch the clock.

Town with personality

Finestrat is one of the people of the most charming Costa Blanca, which has respected the traditional housing structure, perched on a rock gypsum, behind the bulk of the Puig Campana and staring out to sea. The old town of Finestrat is built on the foundations of an ancient Arab castle, since 1924, took the hermitage remedy the Holy Christ, surrounded by the emblematic viewpoint Castell.

Strolling through the convoluted streets of Moorish origin is clearly a pleasure holds this town, and the best way to see the inside of this town so inviting.

Between Hostel Carrer de Sant Miguel and end the visitor through its paces in the small Tortea Square, which is mottled within the structure of the Church of Sant Bertomeu (1751), a temple vibrated during major holiday on 24 August, and the festival of San Blas, on 3 February.

This has resulted in Finestrat is known for its urban orderly, respectful traditional architecture and in balance with the surrounding natural environment.

To modernity

Although Finestrat, over the years, still retains its quaintness characteristic has adapted to changing times. Without doubt, this town has become a landmark of the Costa Blanca.

That planning has left its mark on the perfect combination of tradition, features personal, and focused on the future. The neighborhoods are built in their term municipal respect the style and color of the people to preserve harmony with the environment.

As human and welcoming people, new residential areas are warm, simple, with open spaces and no overcrowding.

This other Finestrat has become habitual residence of foreigners attracted by the charm of the town, its natural environment and climate.

Municipal Services

Living in Finestrat is to live in a town full of amenities. For years it has worked for the municipality to be self-sufficient and not depend on the masses adjoining urban. Therefore, it can do all kinds of sports such as swimming and tennis at the municipal sports facilities, or participate in lectures, workshops or courses Culture House.

Within the district are also large shopping centers, which harmoniously coexist with the small traditional shops. Health, social, urban, cultural and environmental issues are available to both residents and visitors to the municipality.

Industrial park

Throughout history, Finestrat has based its economy on agriculture, with almond, olive, orange and loquat. Since 1980 the township discovered his great tourism potential and turned her charms on an economic incentive for a increasing proliferation of industry in the municipality. For this, the City Council municipality has set up a modern industrial estate, with services, which attracts all services, attracting investment from businesses across the province and commercial premises.

The construction of this estate has been an incentive for industry to the area, but has also been careful to respect the environment. For nothing is Finestrat misplaced.

Finestrat is a town of great promise. Its economy grows, its natural environment is respected and admired, and through the promotion as a tourist town with a charm is internationally known special.